Forecast For Scotland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Friday 26 Mar 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Turning colder with some wintry showers.

Today:
Rain and hill snow clear east in the morning with sunny spells and showers to follow. Showers often heavy in the west, and turning wintry to increasingly low levels through the day.

Tonight:
A dry night with increasingly clear skies in the east. Cloudier in the west with wintery showers continuing, these heaviest and most persistent during the evening.

Saturday:
A cold frosty start. Mostly dry and bright, but scattered wintery showers in the west during the morning. Cloudier and breezier in the afternoon, rain and gales in west later.

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Showers in the far north Sunday, but mostly dry. Rain Sunday night, this likely to persist across the southwest through Monday and Tuesday, becoming more widespread Monday night. Breezy.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.